

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Information can be managed as to whether or not photographed images have been previously subjected to printing or not. In a recording medium storing image files, reception information is also recorded for managing a state of printing order reception for each of the files. A printing order reception apparatus for receiving printing orders rewrites the reception information to represent a state of reception completion, regarding the image files for which a printing order has been received.